Academic ethics refers to how professionals should conduct themselves while working in their profession or in an academic setting. ethics academic ethics ethical behavior Internet ethics The Internet is a uniquely human invention. Not only has it changed the way we communicate, but it also provides a variety of new avenues for information, entertainment, and community. Ethics Beyond High School - Academic Ethics and Internet Use The Internet has become the primary channel for communication between the academic community and its students. Ethical issues in the The Internet has become the primary channel for communication between the academic community and its students. Ethical issues in the web 2.0 world are increasing. Students depend on academic resources to keep their knowledge up to date, and new developments in the Internet world require people to choose between old-school ethics and new-school ethics. Social media is a great tool to connect with people and, with the use of blogs and wikis, students are able to communicate with each other and with other entities such as their faculty. This book will show you how to connect with people and talk to them about the academic world. Key words: Ethics, Internet, Web 2.0, Blogs, Social media, On August 12, 2006, the EU issued a Communication on the Internet and the Public Interest, which represents an attempt to define the type of content that the EU would like to see within the Internet. The Communication addresses the need to maintain balance in the Internet space, where one can easily find different types of information, but it also addresses the need for security and privacy. European Union Communications on the Internet and the Public Interest, EU, Brussels 2006. The Content is based on the EUCommunication on the Internet and the Public Interest released in 2006. The content was used in an attempt to determine what is permissible on the Internet within the EU. The Communication on the Internet and the Public Interest addresses the need to maintain balance in the Internet space, where one can easily find different types of content, but it also addresses the need for security and privacy. Internet and the Public Interest (EU, Brussels 2006) The classic Soviet statesman Konstantin Pobedonostsev (1792-1866) said, "Science is nothing more than a form of self-deception." This is also true about technology. Let's be honest: If we are to believe the current hype, every great technology breakthrough has been preceded by much hysterical hype. This hype has sometimes led 2edc1e01e8
